

Decodable Posters and Decodable Readers for Reading Street 2008 version Unit One Stories

Tired of using all your allotted paper supplies to run the decodable readers for your students to use as your read through each unit? My team is! So we came up with the idea of typing out the decodable readers and putting them on the back of the decodable posters someone designed in our district (oh...so many years ago...). The idea is to put copy the decodable posters on one side of the page and the decodable stories on the other side. Then use the decodable reading booklets that have stories bundled in units during small group time.

Our students have 1" binders that house the school agenda book. We'll add these new pages to a page protector in the binder so they can take them home to read and manipulate with a visa marker as they work with the words. No more...I forgot my book to read 😊 (probably won't stop ...I didn't have time to read last night) but will come in handy for word work stations and the like 😊

Enjoy!
